

ALOYSIUS CLUB OUT

Relinquishes Franchise in Capital City League.

OFFICIAL NOTIFICATION GIVEN

Secretary Woodgate Presents Resignation, Which Is Accepted by the League Directors in Session Yesterday—No Reason Assigned for Move—Plans for Benefit Dance.

The Aloysius club has dropped from the Capital City League.

Official notification that the team had severed connections with the league was made by Secretary Woodgate, of the Aloysius club, when he turned over the franchise to the league directors, in meeting yesterday in the office of President James A. O'Shea. The resignation was accepted by T. L. Fortune, secretary of the league.

No reason is assigned for the withdrawal of the club, but it is known that dissension has been rampant in the Aloysius camp ever since John F. Luitich, the former manager, resigned and took the helm of the Government Printing Office team. It is rumored that Luitich's withdrawal from the team was the signal for a quick getaway for the majority of the club's best players, some of whom have openly stated that they intend to play under him on the printers' team, so that the security of material for a strong club may be one of the chief reasons why the North Capital street team will not take the field this year.

That the team will be missed goes without saying. The Aloysius club has been a member of the Capital City League since its inception, and has always figured prominently in local amateur circles.

Last year it won the pennant, after a bitter struggle with the St. Stephen's Institute club, and made a most creditable showing in the post-season series for the championship of the District, being beaten for the title by the Trinity College of the Marquette League, only after the hardest kind of a struggle, in which luck was a prominent factor.

Vacancy in League.
The relinquishment of the franchise of the Aloysius club leaves a vacancy which many strong independent teams in the District would be glad to fill, but the matter of selecting a successor will be some time in the making.

The grounds committee, which was appointed to look into the advisability of enclosing the diamond at First and M streets northeast, has not made its report as yet, but it is considered doubtful that a fence will be erected, although additional stands for the spectators will probably be built.

The entertainment and dance for the benefit of the league to be held at Carroll Institute February 21 came in for considerable discussion, and from present prospects the affair promises to be a huge success.

PLANS FOR HIGHLANDERS.

Griffith's Men Report at Atlanta on March 6 to Begin Series.

New York, Feb. 9.—Plans for the spring training of the Highlanders were completed yesterday, when Secretary Nathan, in the absence of Manager Clarke, finished the team's schedule for the spring.

The entire team will be at Atlanta on March 8. At present Manager Griffith, J. Garland Stahl, and Kid Elberfeld are at Hot Springs, Ark. Chesbro, Hoag, Keeler, and Kline will leave here tomorrow to join Griffith, Doyle, Rice, O'Brien, and Hendrix.

The players scheduled to start from this city on March 6 for Atlanta are: Nease, Nease, and Newton. All the other members of the team will go to Atlanta direct from their homes.

The games scheduled for the Highlanders are as follows: On March 8, 12, 14, 15, 16, 17, and 18 they will play the Atlanta team, of the Southern League, at Atlanta; March 23, at Atlanta, they will play the Georgia School of Technology, and March 28, a game has been arranged with the Athens (Ga.) independent team. On April 2 and 3 the Highlanders will pass in Atlanta, playing the Atlanta club.

The trip north will begin on April 4. The team will be divided, the first squad playing at Atlanta and the second at Richmond. On April 6 the first team plays at Roanoke and the second at Richmond. On April 7 the teams will meet and play at Lynchburg.

On April 8 and 9 the Highlanders will meet Jack Dunn's Orioles at Baltimore. April 10 they will play the Tigers at Detroit, and April 11 the Skeeters at Jersey City. Sunday, April 12, Griffith's men will play the Senators at Newark.

White Sox Leave February 29.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—President Charles Comiskey has completed all arrangements for the trip of the White Sox to Los Angeles. The "White Sox" special will run as usual, and the team will leave for Los Angeles on the Golden State Limited, leaving on the night of February 29. The special will be first-class in every respect, carrying buffet-library car, dining car and standees through to Los Angeles.

There will also be a standard Pullman designated as the "Fans' Car."

Sailors to See Bonts in Frisco.

San Francisco, Feb. 9.—When the battle ship fleet reaches here Uncle Sam's tars will have a boxing carnival arranged in their honor by Promoter James Coffroth. It is the latter's intention to put on a number of good ring battles to which the sailors will be admitted practically free, the purses to be provided by popular subscription. As boxing is extremely popular among the sailors of the navy, Coffroth's plan indicates that there will be plenty of sport.

CRACK HURDLERS ENTERED.

Four Champions Will Compete in Race at Federal Games.

With four champions and four other men almost as fast in the 50-yard hurdle race in the Federal games at Convention Hall next Saturday night, it will be one of the leading events on the programme. Three of these men have records of six seconds for the distance over the hurdle, and that the race will be fast and close is a certainty.

J. H. Hall, of Mercersburg Academy, has the best hurdle record of any of the entries. He is the Eastern interscholastic champion in the 120-yard hurdle, with a record of 15.4 seconds to his credit. Joe Hill, of the Mount Washington Athletic Club, and South Atlantic A. A. U. champion, has a record over the high sticks only a fifth of a second slower than Hall. He is the American record holder for the 100-yard hurdle over eight sticks. R. F. Riddell, of the Brown Prep School, is the best scholastic hurdler in the United States, and only a yard back of Hall in the spring while J. H. Hartman is rated as the best hurdler in the University of Pennsylvania this year. Archie Randolph, of the University of Virginia, and Southern intercollegiate champion, has a record of 16 seconds for this event, and has done the 50-yard distance in 6 seconds. Tom Smith, of Georgetown Prep, the best schoolboy hurdler in the District, and W. Martin, of the Baltimore City College, will represent the Southern schools.

In the scholastic hurdle, at the same distance, Hall, Riddell, Smith, and Martin will meet again, with half a dozen other good boys, and the struggle for points among this quartet will be fierce and speedy.

OUTLAWS TEMPT PLAYERS.

Union League Is After Men on Rills of the Tri-State Clubs.

Altoona, Feb. 9.—The Altoona Tri-State team will go to Newport News, Va., to do its spring training. Manager John Farrell will have the players report to him at that place March 25.

He will arrange a number of exhibition games to help defray the expenses of the trip. Farrell spent the winter at Kansas City. He is now at Hot Springs resort getting in shape for spring work.

Tri-State players are being tempted by the outlaw Union League. Shortstop Joe Ward and Catcher George Starnage have been approached, and players of other teams have been offered inducements to jump to the outlaws.

The various managers, however, are keeping their eyes on their reserved players, and do not propose to let them go without making a struggle.

BURNS READY FOR PALMER

American Decided Favorite Over the British Heavy-weight.

Tommy Burns, the Canadian pugilist, who meets Jack Palmer, of England, in London to-night, has finished training for the event, and, according to dispatches, will be fit for the fight of his life when he steps into the ring at Wonderland.

Men Are Scheduled to Go Twenty Rounds at Catch-weights Before Club at Wonderland.

The men are scheduled to fight twenty rounds at catch-weights, and in the betting that has gone on since the articles were signed on December 5, Burns is a decided favorite. He expects to put the Newcastle man to sleep in less than ten rounds, and, it is understood, has wagered a considerable sum on this proposition.

The fight, which in this country would attract little attention, has all England "by the ears" so to speak. Over there they consider Burns the heavy-weight champion of the world. He has said so himself, and his artistic trimming of Gunner Moir, at the National Sporting Club early in December, convinced the British that he was the real thing.

On certain lines of reasoning, the Canadian does shape up as a champion in these dull times; but, as a matter of fact, few know the game on this side are inclined to rate him with any of the past champions. Probably 50 per cent of ring followers think him lucky to have so far escaped a meeting with Jack Johnson, the negro aspirant, not to speak of a meeting with the great American who has been the real thing.

Burns, at any rate, is on the sunny side of the street at present with the Palmer match at hand, and another sign of it is the fact that the Irish pugilist is expected to speak over there for March 17. In preparation for his match with Moir, Burns trained in a charming country hostelry in North Middlesex, where the billiard room was converted into a gymnasium for his use.

For the coming match with Palmer he selected "Jack Straw's Castle," one of the most noted public houses of England. It was made famous by Dickens, who frequently used it as a scene, and recommended it to his friends. Jack Straw's Castle, more prominently known as the Castle Hotel, stands on the edge of Hampstead Heath.

SWEET MARIE REPORTED SOLD.

Champion Mare Said to Have Been Purchased by W. E. Bradley.

New York, Feb. 9.—It was reported here today that W. E. Bradley, of this city, had purchased from E. T. Stotesbury, of Philadelphia, the world's champion trotting mare, Sweet Marie, 2:02, by McKinney, and that the mare would be shipped to W. E. Andrews, at Poughkeepsie, next week. The sale price was announced as $100,000.

Last season Sweet Marie broke two world's records over the Allentown half-mile track, clipping the sulky record against time to 2:08, cutting a full second off the record made by Crescens, and in a match race against time to 2:04, clipping four seconds off the world's mark, also held by Crescens.

These miles met great interest, and later Sweet Marie met Maj. Delmar, 1:59 1/2, in a match race for $5,000 at Allentown, and won in straight heats, establishing a new world's record for a half-mile track, trotting the second heat in 2:08.

W. E. Bradley, who is reported as the new owner of the mare, owns George G. 2:03 1/2, the holder of the world's record against time over a half-mile track, 2:04 1/2, made at Allentown on the same day that Sweet Marie beat Maj. Delmar.

It is understood that Mr. Bradley will race a string extensively next season, and that he has engaged W. E. Andrews, who drove Sweet Marie last year, to handle his horses, in conjunction with Alta McDonald, who drove for Bradley last year. It is very likely that the Bradley stable will cut quite a figure in giving exhibitions against time and in match races next season, with two of the cleverest trainers and drivers in charge.

NO USE FOR WADDELL

Cantillon Refuses to Make a Trade for Southpaw.

ASKED FOR HUGHES OR SMITH

While His Eccentric Habits Caused Connie Mack No End of Worry, "Rube" Was the Greatest Drawing Card on the Diamond—Has Seen His Best Days in Game.

The sale of Rube Waddell, the eccentric southpaw, to St. Louis last week, was made only after Connie Mack, of the Athletics, had failed to put through a deal with Joe Cantillon, in which Waddell was to come to Washington in exchange for a member of the Nationals' pitching staff.

Not until near the close of last season did Manager Mack finally decide that "Rube" must go. He did so with great reluctance, but once the decision was made, Connie set about the task of disposing of the most-talked-of player of his generation.

If there was any lingering doubt about keeping or letting the big twirler go, it was settled on the last day of the season of 1907, when the Athletics were at National Park.

Manager Mack tried out in the first game of the double-header a young pitcher from New Orleans, who did fourth work for three innings. In the fourth the youngster lost control and filled the bases with passes.

Then "Rube" was called on. He pitched just one ball. It was hit, and dropped back of second base. Neither Eddie Collins, who was playing shortstop, nor Olden, who was playing center field, could quite get up to the ball. Waddell watched the ball fall and then coolly walked on to the pitcher's rubber.

That ended "Rube" forever as a member of the Athletics. Manager Mack, before leaving Washington, tried to trade him for either Pitcher Smith or Tom Hughes, but Manager Cantillon declined to make the trade. Other managers also declined to part with good players for such an uncertain individual as Waddell.

King of Southpaws.
The release of Waddell marks the beginning of the end of the career of the greatest left-handed pitcher that ever stepped into the box. When Waddell, in his prime, was right he was invincible. Although "Rube" had "no head," he was a great pitcher. He didn't need brains, because he was such a great pitching machine that the best batsmen in the country were helpless before him, no matter where he pitched the ball. All batsmen looked alike to him, and he did not have to study their weaknesses.

As a drawing card "Rube" was in a class by himself. He was the best-advertised ball player that ever wore a uniform. The thousands of fans who followed him to the ballpark were not only interested in the game, but in the "Rube" himself.

Waddell's popularity with the crowds was brought about by his clownish actions on the field in connection with his ability to pitch. Off the field "Rube" was always doing something to keep his name before the public. He would carry a red-hot stove out of a house to save a family from being burned to death; throw flat irons at his father-in-law; referee a prize fight, take part in a football game or jump in and help out in any sort of emergency to get his name into print during the off-season. Tending bar has always been one of "Rube's" specialties, but as an actor he proved a failure. All these features were stock in trade to "Rube's" drawing powers on the ball field. It will be a long time before baseball gets another "Rube" Waddell.

But, with all his faults, "Rube" had many good traits. He was a generous fellow when he had money, and as Waddell would work as hard and as often as he was asked. He would throw his arm out for "Connie," whom he looked upon as a sort of guardian.

But Waddell spoiled a lot of his good traits by deserting his club just when it was most needed. When "Rube" took a notion to go fishing nothing would stop him.

Fished in St. Louis Cellars.
During the season of 1904, when "Rube" had his wife with him on a trip through the West, shortly after being married, the club arrived in St. Louis about 10 o'clock in the morning, and in ten minutes "Rube" had disappeared. It was soon after the time of the great flood, which almost wiped out East St. Louis, and, after being absent from his wife and the hotel for thirty-six hours, "Rube" turned up with a string of catfish. He had been over in East St. Louis fishing in the cellar of a submerged house.

Waddell had a remarkable record for the six years with the Athletics, having won more games than he lost each year except in 1906, when he broke even. His record is as follows:

| Year. | Won. | Lost. | Pct. |
|-------|------|-------|------|
| 1904  | 22   | 16    | .579 |
| 1905  | 23   | 19    | .548 |
| 1906  | 16   | 16    | .500 |
| 1907  | 19   | 13    | .593 |

Waddell always did his best work when the grounds were packed; he feasted on the plaudits of the crowd, which seemed to spur him on to greater work. He has many wonderful performances to his credit while connected with the Athletics.

The first year he joined the club "Rube" showed to best advantage. In one game he pitched a perfect game, and in another he pitched a no-hit game. He was almost untouchable, and only twenty-seven men faced him in nine innings.

Cause of His Downfall.
"Rube" by this time had become the sensation of the baseball world, and his popularity among certain classes was so great that in every city that the Athletics visited there was a delegation of friends waiting for him at the station, to steer him off for a good time. "Rube" was easily led, and that is the cause of his downfall.

Had Waddell taken care of himself he would still be the greatest pitcher in the country. Waddell was never a high-salaried man, but did his great work for at least half the sum paid to other star pitchers of his day.

In 1903 Waddell established the strike-out record for a season with 301 in 28 games. He frequently concluded contests by calling the outfield in off the field while he struck out the last three men in the ninth inning. He pitched three memorable battles that year, one of 17, one of 18, and another of 29 innings, landing all three of them.

Waddell had a great season in 1905, when he led the American League pitchers and landed the team so far in front that when he did let down Plank went on almost single-handed and won the pennant for the Athletics.

Claimed to Be Sick.
It was at the close of the season that Waddell "got in bad" and lost much of his popularity. He claimed to be sick, but the "fans" would not believe it, because there were many ugly rumors afloat that he had been "bought" by a New York bookmaker to lay down on the world's series. This could never be proven, but the fact that "Rube" didn't do much pitching the last end of that season and in the world's series strengthened the suspicion of the "fans."

In 1906 Waddell didn't take good care of himself and barely broke even on the season. Last year he was good in spots, but it was noticeable that Waddell last year had lost much of his speed and failed to register the numerous strikeouts of previous seasons.

About the innings of top speed was Waddell's limit, and it looks as though he was about done as a major league pitcher. It is a pretty good tip that when Connie Mack lets a player go he is about "all in."

Waddell does report to St. Louis, he will not finish the season with the Browns. The chances are that "Rube" will either go to the Pacific Coast or the Union League.

PENN DESIRES GAME
Quakers Realize Value of the Army-Navy Contest.

NEW YORK REAL CONTENDER

Gothamites Are Hungry for Gridiron Sport, and as a Michigan-Indian and an Indian-Princeton Game Are to Be Played in Big City, Seating Capacity Will Have to Be Increased.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 9.—"If the Army and Navy football game is taken away from Philadelphia this year it will never come back again, at least to be played on Franklin field," said a man who has had much to do with the business end of the big football crowds that have collected in this city during the past ten years. "And what is more," continued the oracle, "if the game does get away from Pennsylvania it will be the fault of the university people themselves, and not the representatives of the Annapolis and West Point institutions, for all who have ever been connected with the management of the big game in any capacity readily admit that Philadelphia is the logical place to hold the game."

"Geographically, historically, and sociologically," Philadelphia is the proper place of the game, and were it not for the petty annoyances which the managers of the affair have been so often rattled up with, there would never be any thought of playing the game in any other city. Franklin field is ideally located for the purpose, and the seating capacity is ample so far as the needs of the Army and Navy go.

"Naturally that portion of the public which finds itself shut out for lack of room may feel a little sore over the fact that so few tickets are placed on sale—only one-third of the seating capacity of the grounds being within the reach of any one not on the complimentary list of one or the other of the two government institutions, and the tickets that are actually sold are first offered to the University of Pennsylvania, the general public getting only what they pass up."

MAY WRESTLE HERE

Hackenschmidt Wants Bout Before Meeting Gotch.

LOOKING FOR AN OPPONENT

If Heavy-weight Can Be Found to Go Against Russian Lion Match Will Be Arranged for March 18 at Convention Hall—Foreigner One of the Greatest Grapplers that Lives.

George Hackenschmidt, the world's champion wrestler, will show in this city before his match with Frank Gotch, the American title holder, providing a suitable opponent for the "Russian Lion" can be found.

The management of the Convention Hall Skating rink has received a request that March 18 be set aside for the champion, and the promoters of the tour of Hackenschmidt are now scouting for some heavy-weight wrestler to oppose the foreigner. Thus far the search has been fruitless, but if a match can be arranged it will draw a large crowd, for Hackenschmidt is considered one of the greatest grapplers that has ever stepped on a mat.

Not since the days of William Muldoon has the United States developed a wrestler who could successfully cope with foreign marvels of physical development met in turn Japs, Russians, Greeks, and, in fact, any nationality whose representatives came to this country, and their shoulders went down in one-two-three years. American sports have yearned for another Muldoon. There is a revival of wrestling in Europe, and with the coming of Hackenschmidt America is to experience a renewed interest in the mat game.

Depends on Gotch.
The Stars and Stripes must rise or fall with Frank Gotch. He is the acknowledged premier wrestler of this country to-day, and his coming match with the Russian Lion will be awaited with feverish excitement throughout the civilized world.

The two men will meet on the mat in this country on some date between April 1 and April 5. Just where the match will be held is not definitely decided, but William W. Wittig, of Milwaukee, who has arranged the meeting, says that, being unable to obtain Madison Square Garden or any other suitable place in New York, it probably would be held in Chicago, although Kansas City, St. Paul, and Minneapolis would be considered.

The big match will be for a purse of $10,000. Up to this time no side wager has been arranged, but Hackenschmidt is said to be willing to cover any reasonable amount that Gotch may elect. The conditions provide for a meeting at catch-as-catch-can, best two out of three falls. Pin falls and tying falls will not count, and the struggle hold will be barred.

Hackenschmidt will be the favorite, in all probability, but Gotch will not lack for followers, as many of those interested in the sport will pin their faith to him on account of his well-known cleverness, believing that this will more than make up for the Russian lion's remarkable strength and bulk.
